LARGE ATTENDANCE AT GOULD ACADEMY 1910-1911 REUNION SUNDAY

The members of the classes of 1910 and 1911 of Gould Academy held their most largely attended joint reunion at Birch Villa, Bryant Pond, Aug. 19. Present were 14 of the 1910 class and nine of 1911. However, the party of wives, husbands and guests, which included other Gould alumni, numbered more than 40.

Before, during and after the excellent dinner the group renewed acquaintances and reminisced of earlier days. Several of the party had not met since school days. Pictures of over 40 years ago were reviewed by all, much interest centering in the identification of fellow members in several pictures of the student body.

During the dinner Mrs. Arthur Chapman read an interesting account of the 1910 class, and at the meeting afterward newspaper reports of 1911's early reunions were read by Mrs. Leslie Davis. At this meeting singing of old songs was enjoyed, led by Win Howe with Mrs. Helen Bean at the piano. Committee to arrange for the 1922 reunion (on the third Sunday in August) is: Sylvanus Browne, Mrs. Arnold Brown, Mrs. Allan Brooks, and Carl Brown.

Much of the success of the reunion is due to the work of the committee in charge, especially Mrs. Arthur Herrick whose enthusiastic efforts among her 1910 classmates aroused interest and record attendance.

Attending were: 1910—Mr. and Mrs. Cedric Judkins, Upton, Dr. and Mrs. Gard Twaddle, Auburn; Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Philbrick, Greene; Mr. and Mrs. Allan Brooks (Marjorie Cashman), Pownall; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Browne, Bryant Pond; Mr. and Mrs. Sylvanus Browne (Eva Smith), Bethel; Mrs. Florence (Cress) Machia, Bethel; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Herrick, Bethel; Miss Mabel Packard, Augusta; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Thurston, Poland; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Keniston (Annie Plingree), Bridgton; Miss Betta Shaw, Portland; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Chapman (Edith Brown), Bryant Pond.

1911—Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Arno, Errol, N. H.; Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Davis (Marie Swan), Bethel; Mr. and Mrs. Carl Brown, Bethel; Miss Ida Packard, Bethel; Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Bean (Ella Bartlett), Bath; Miss Alta Smith, Yonkers, N. Roy Blake A State Winner Best Pastures

Roy Blake, of Bethel, has been chosen by the state committee of Green Pasture Judges as having one of the three best pastures in the State of Maine. The other two winners were Carrol Frost, of Lincolnville, and A. H. Lindsay & Sons, of Carroll. These three men were picked from a field of nearly 600 contestants from all over the state.

Mr. Blake has a truly outstanding roughage program. He runs a mixed herd of 19 cows and eight head of young stock on his farm of 89 tillage acres. His land is all high in fertility, which shows up in lush stands of ladino clover in his pasture plots and hayland. A new seeding of alfalfa and ladino also looks very good. His grain-to-milk ratio, the day his pastures were judged, was one to ten.

Three winners are picked out in each state which are judged by the New England committee. This committee began its tour on August 20 and will arrive in Maine the first of next week to judge the three state winners. They will pick out the best pasture in the state and will also place each state winner in order of one to six in New England competition.

Each top state winner received a silver pitcher and the New England state winner goes to Eastern States Exposition to be honored at Governor's Night, Monday, Sept. 17. Those who do not receive pitchers or trays will be given plaques.

This contest is a fine means of honoring men who have done an outstanding job of pasture and roughage improvement.

Driver Education Results in Greater Safety on Highways

More than two million youths have received special courses in their schools during the last four years to make them safer drivers when they take the wheel of the family car or drive their own automobiles, the Association of Casualty and Surety Companies says.

The significance of this large and rapidly growing group of safety-trained young drivers who usually have only one-third as many accidents as untrained students, was noted by Julien H. Harvey, manager of the Association's accident prevention department, as he announced its fourth annual awards to 27 states and the District of Columbia for noteworthy progress in developing driver education courses in their secondary schools.

School-trained drivers in 48 states now comprise more than 3 percent of the nation's 60,000,000 drivers, he said, and are increasing at the rate of 600,000 a year. This is twice the rate of four years ago when the Association instituted its annual National Driver Education Award Program granting recognition to state which made or maintained marked progress in driver education courses, and to individual schools in those states.

Ten states have won the Association's Superior Awards for offering courses in driver education during the 1950-51 year in at least 50 percent of their secondary schools, with not less than half of the eligible students enrolled. These states are: Arizona, California, Illinois, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, New Jersey, North Dakota, Oklahoma and Wisconsin.

Seventeen states and the District of Columbia will receive Meritorious Awards for giving driver education courses in at least 25 percent of their secondary schools, with not less than 25 percent of eligible students enrolled. The 17 states are: Connecticut, Delaware, Indiana, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Oregon, Texas, Utah, Vermont, Virginia, Washington and West Virginia.

Four of these states, New Jersey, North Dakota, Oklahoma and Vermont, also won a special award given for the first time to states in which parochial and private schools have shown unusual progress in driver education, with more than 25 percent of schools and students participating in the program.

The Association, which sponsored in high school driver education and for more than 15 years has sponsored these courses as an effective means of helping to reduce the toll of street and highway accidents, said nearly 5,000 schools have added driver training to their curricula since the award program was started in September 1947.

"Driver education has been found to be one of the best answers to the problem of reducing the growing toll of death, injury and damage on the highways," declared Mr. Harvey. "The growing acceptance of these courses and the steadily increasing numbers of boys and girls trained in them in the ways of traffic safety for themselves and others offer real hope that in the not too distant future every youth will receive driver education in school before taking the wheel of his or her own car. Were it not for the progress driver education has made, I shudder to think what the accident toll might be today."

Pointing out that 662,253 public school students in 48 states and the District of Columbia took these courses during the academic year ended in June, Mr. Harvey said the driver education movement has trained a total of 1,997,754 boys and girls in public schools since September 1947. In addition, nearly 10,000 students in 22 states have received training in driving since 1939 in parochial and private schools, where the movement has been spreading rapidly in recent years. With this latter group the total of school-trained drivers has just passed the 2,000,000 mark, Mr. Harvey observed.

Official reports from every state show that 7,922 public schools in the last year gave either classroom instruction meeting the Association's minimum standards for driver education courses, or classroom work combined with practice driving. This is an increase of 725 schools, or 10 percent more than a year ago and 377 percent of the 21,099 public secondary schools in the nation, according to Mr. Harvey.

More than two out of every five eligible students were enrolled in these courses in the 1950-51 academic year, he estimated. Of 1,747,781 eligible, 37,051 were enrolled for classroom work only, a gain of approximately 4550 over the previous year. Combined classroom and practice driving courses enrolled 2,415,521, about 55,000 more than in 1949-50. In 2,943 schools, classroom only training had an average enrollment of 152 students per school against 57 per school in 1949. In 1,121 schools giving both classroom and practice driving

In 893 other schools 45,909 students were enrolled in courses which do not meet the Association's standards for driver education. These substandard courses taught to 8,915 the total of 1,747,781

McGOWRILL PLAY TO BE STAGED BY CAMDEN HILLS THEATRE

Announcement has been made by Herschel L. Bricker, supervisory director of the Camden Hills Theatre, that all but one of the matinee performances of "Behold, Man," to be presented Aug. 23 through Sept. 2, have been cancelled. The only matinee will be Saturday, Sept. 1, and that will be given in the Camden Opera House, where all evening performances will be presented.

Mr Bricker originally intended to stage matinees of the new play in the Camden Garden Theatre, but further work with the play has convinced him that special lighting effects and more concentrated staging are vital to the story.

"Behold, Man" moves from the pomp and pageantry of the Roman Senate to the restless rebellion of Israel under the distant hand of the Roman Emperor Tiberius. Beset by taxes, constant military supervision and a growing doubt in their future, the people of Israel waited sullenly under the Roman occupation, ripe for revolt. Into this atmosphere of unrest and anxiety came Jesus, offering inner peace and strength.

Of him, his work and his people is the theme of "Behold, Man." The play was written by Milton M. McGorill of Orono, not as a sermon or a "guide to living," but as the story of a great man. It tells in simple language his influence on all men. Historically accurate and skillfully written and directed, "Behold, Man" promises to be of strong interest both as an experiment in theatre and in thought.
